Terrorism. In his remarks, the President announced that 14 senior members of al Qaeda have been moved from classified locations, where they were being held and questioned by the CIA, to DOD custody where they can be brought to justice for their crimes.

-- Interrogations of these individuals have yielded vital intelligence we have shared with our allies, and stopped numerous plots.

-- One Indonesian national, Hambali [key alias, Riduan bin Isomuddin (true name)], was among those transferred.

-- The ICRC has been notified and will have access to him. No detainees remain in CIA custody.

-- At Guantanamo, these individuals will receive the same standard of treatment as all other detainees in Guantanamo.

-- These detainees will appear before a combatant status review tribunal to confirm that they are properly held as enemy combatants in accordance with the same standards that govern all other DOD detainees at Guantanamo.

-- These detainees will have access to counsel, will be afforded the opportunity to worship, and will be able to write and receive mail from their families and friends, to the same extent as other detainees in DOD custody.

-- All requests by foreign officials to meet with these detainees will be considered using the existing DOD policy on foreign government access to GTMO detainees.
